Materials information sheet

BASE MATERIAL: The base material needs to be a 20 mm no fines crushed rock. To see a detailed sieve analysis referred to the technical manual.

This material can be quite difficult to source, particularly in small quantities. When enquiring about this material at a local Garden Centre they most likely will not be familiar with the material. However the garden supply can mix the material either with a front end loader or in a batching plant. The required mix is as follows:

1 part 20 mm screenings. (25%)

2 parts 14 mm screenings. (50%)

1 part 7 mm screenings. (25%)

# The material must be thoroughly mixed.

Note there is also a material known as 14-10- 7 mix that is available at some garden supplies and concrete mixing plants. This material can only be used for pedestrian only areas.

For large quantities most crushed stone quarries will mix the base material to specifications on request.

BEDDING LAYER: The bedding layer needs to be a no fines material. For a detailed sieve analysis referred to the technical manual. The ideal material is an angular 2 to 4 mm graded material. However this is also difficult to source and the best alternative is to use a fine graded screenings. The size of this screening will vary from one supplier to the next and it is best to obtain a well graded material no larger than 6 mm and no smaller than 1 mm. The material must be void of any fine dust.
